

READ THE BEST OF BOOK CLUB PICKS

The final novel from Carol Shields, Unless is a moving exploration of grief and loss, but also of creativity and goodness. Visit www.bookclubs.ca for reading guides to this book and other works by Shields, such as Dressing Up for the Carnival (which includes a rare author Q & A).

Boasting over 15 discussion questions, the guide for this novel gives book clubs plenty to discuss about this rich and rewarding work by Rohinton Mistry. Family Matters is Mistry's third consecutive book to be nominated for the Booker Prize. Find out why Mistry is considered one of Canada's finest literary exports.

The latest novel by Margaret Atwood is a provocative work of speculative fiction reminiscent of The Handmaid's Tale, and an absolute must-read. Oryx and Crake has its own website, www.oryxandcrake.ca, featuring photos, essays, and even an e-card to send to friends!

Many book clubs are choosing this rollicking novel by Terry Griggs, who is this year's recipient of the Marian Engel Award for a female writer in mid-career. Rogues' Wedding has been likened to a modern-day Alice in Wonderland story and has received unanimous critical praise.

The Navigator of New York, Wayne Johnston's follow-up to The Colony of Unrequited Dreams, is an epic and immensely readable novel. If you don't believe us, ask Mary Walsh: "Unlike most recent bestselling novels that are remembered for the plane flight and then promptly forgotten, Wayne's stories have characters who move in and take up permanent residence."

Visit www.bookclubs.ca for book club guides to these titles and many more.